Inetum supports the town of Antony in implementing its GenAI initiative

With the help of Inetum, a leading digital services and solutions company, the town of Antony (Ile-de-France) today announced its intention to set up, on an experimental basis, a conversational HR agent to improve the efficiency of the human resources department. The HR chatbot will automatically (based on available documentation) deliver information on leave, remote working, accident prevention and pay slips.

"This conversational HR agent, based on Azure Open AI technology, will enable the town's employees to quickly obtain information about their entitlements, without first having to contact the human resources department. This solution will enable the HR team to concentrate on higher value-added tasks." David DANTHIER, General Manager of Services for the town of Antony.

"A leader in digital services and solutions, Inetum employs 70 people dedicated to innovation and GenAi in France. With this HR conversational agent, the town of Antony will improve the quality of life at work for its employees, while offering a more efficient service to its users." Yannick WALLER, Managing Director of Inetum Solutions France.
